

Combining simplified INLA, automatic differentiation and adaptive Gauss-Hermite quadrature for fast and accurate inference in a challenging, real-world problem

Integrated nested Laplace approximations for extended latent Gaussian models, with application to the Naomi HIV model

Adam Howes^{1, 2}

🐦 @adamhowes

✉ ath19@ic.ac.uk

Alex Stringer³ Seth R. Flaxman⁴ Jeffrey W. Eaton²

¹ Department of Mathematics, Imperial College London

² MRC Centre for Global Infectious Disease Analysis, School of Public Health, Imperial College London

³ Department of Statistics and Actuarial Science, University of Waterloo

⁴ Department of Computer Science, University of Oxford

The Naomi model
Inference procedure
Comparison
Conclusions

Funding AH was supported by the EPSRC and Bill & Melinda Gates Foundation. This research was supported by the MRC Centre for Global Infectious Disease Analysis.

References